Website Accessibility Audits

What Does 508 Compliance Mean?

Section 508 of the Americans With Disabilities Act requires all Federal agencies and contractors to make their electronic and information technology (EIT) accessible to people with disabilities. This includes websites and documents.

Do all websites need to be compliant?

YES, Many large companies such as Target, the NBA, and Toy's "R" Us have been singled out for their inaccessible websites and sued in Federal court. No matter the size or industry of your company, your site can be deemed non-compliant if it isn't readable by people who use screen readers and other access related technology. Compliance related updates can get your organization ahead of the curve and avoid being made aware after it's too late.

How to I make sure my website is Compliant?

The best way to confirm your website is accessible is to ask those who use accessible technology themselves! This is where Beyond Vision can help! Our Accessibility Audit Team is made up of qualified accessibility testers. Our team uses a combination of the most common screen reading, magnifying, and Braille-rendering technology in use globally today. This allows us to combine feedback from qualified accessibility testers with the thoroughness of automated scans. By doing this we can then direct you to any problematic issues on your site along with the most effective code to fix each issue.
